“ Justin.. To my brother. We may not have been real brothers, but oh we were so much. You and Jonathon have always been my lil brothers and man, the good times we have had! I remember going to your soccer games, putting on a jersey to help you all play and win your games. Or the times playing Super Nintendo while your grandma would be yelling at us to be quiet or quit running around LOL. Or even the times with Auntie would get the spatula out on us kids and we would run and hide. What about the 3-wheeler accident with the car on Conkey-- I remember that was the first time I ever heard, "I'll be missing you" by P Diddy.. I also remember when you had your tonsils taken out and first thing we ate was biscuits and gravy. Or when you all moved into the duplex, we would run through the corn field chucking corn at the neighbor kids! What about sneaking around to smoke a cigarette like we won't get caught or our parents not known.. Man, playing dice, cards, bean bags, bottle rocket wars, starting shit on fire, or just playin games--we was never up to no good. I remember when you first started drivin, it was always a fight to see who would get to drive the parents everywhere or just cruise down the road to the country store. All the great times and sad times-- either way I am glad to call you my brother and havin you in my life!! I love u like no other, rest easy bro and I'll be seein' you when I get there. Love u bro,
Rob
