“ Growing up, my role model answer was always met with, “my big brother bub of course!”. Chris/bub, was the kindest, funniest, most accepting person you’d ever meet. He’d make promises to me, and he ALWAYS kept them. I never knew a time a promise was broken by Bub.

When I was 7 or so, Bub promised to pick me up for Christmas. I lived in Lafayette, and him in Rensselaer, I believe... at the time. Well, the day rolled around for him to get me, and it was a typical Indiana blizzard. Harsh conditions, icy roads, never ending flurries; but that didn’t stop Bub from driving backroads and picking me up. It’s one of my most special memories, because I didn’t think he was coming because of weather - yet he persisted. We did end up in a ditch, but a farmer was out making sure the road was clear and lent a pull.

When I ended up moving to Boston as a teenager, I never stopped feeling the love my brother had for me. As he constantly reached out, called, emailing with my aunt trying to persuade her to send me for a visit.. Bub was his sisters keeper, he really was. He was a great family guy, and I’m so happy he was able to make his own beautiful family and life with Bridgette.

Bub was an amazing guy. Humorous, always there to lend a hand, he shared my dark humor and love for music and theatre. And he will be forever missed by every life he touched.

Love you forever Bub.

“ From the minute he was born, I fell madly in love with him. He had the most beautiful eyes and his hair was gold. He had a mission in life to make everyone he knew (and those he did not know). He was a joy to raise. He was always smiling and happy. He received a baby brother on his first birthday and he was so happy about that. Chris had a beautiful soul and a huge heart. I'm missing him so much and I love him even more.
